OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE
SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS 62756

As chairman of the Illinois Literacy Council, I am pleased to provide this Directory of Adult Literacy Programs in Illinois. The Illinois State Library Literacy Office has gathered the information contained in the Directory over the past year directly from adult literacy providers and the literacy networks.

The Directory has been compiled for use as a reference by state agencies and their local administrative offices, private agencies and organizations, local and regional adult literacy programs, members of the media, and concerned citizens who wish to obtain information on instructional services which are being offered through the several networks which comprise the Illinois literacy effort.

The literacy/volunteer initiative in Illinois is a dynamic and rapidly expanding effort. Each month, new satellite centers are being established; new organizations are joining with local providers to expand their outreach activities; businesses and civic associations are offering new sites for instruction; and new coalitions are being formed to support and promote adult literacy services.

For these reasons, the Directory will be updated annually to reflect this growth and provide as accurate a reference as possible to Directory recipients. We ask for your cooperation and assistance in maintaining updated records. At the back of the Directory, we have provided Directory Supplement forms for your use. These forms can be filled out and returned to the Literacy Office at any time during Fiscal Year 1988. The additions and corrections which are received by our office will be included in the annual update of the Directory.

It is our hope that the Directory will serve as a valuable resource to all who are involved, and those who wish to become involved, in the Illinois literacy effort.

and State Librarian

The Illinois Literacy Effort

The Illinois literacy effort was established in May 1984 with the appointment of the Illinois Literacy Council. Under the leadership of Secretary of State Jim Edgar, who serves as Council chairman in his capacity as State Librarian, the Council has provided direction, visibility, and advocacy for adult literacy providers of all types across the state.

Illinois has developed a diversified network of literacy programs. Providers include libraries, adult education agencies, Laubach Literacy Action councils, Literacy Volunteers of America, Inc. affiliates, alternative schools, community-based organizations, and correctional institutions.

Literacy providers work cooperatively at the local level to coordinate delivery of services to adults 16 years and older whose reading, comprehension and computation skills are below the sixth grade level. Most providers use trained volunteers as reading tutors or program advocates, enhancing their ability to serve the most-in-need, least-educated adult student population.

Major funding for adult literacy volunteer programs in Illinois has been provided through the Secretary of State's Literacy Grant Program. Since its establishment in 1985, the Secretary of State's Literacy Grant Program has provided a total of $6 million in direct grant awards to programs of all types. These grants, combined with State Board of Education grants to education agencies for adult basic education and literacy/volunteerism, and Illinois State Library grants to libraries and library systems for library literacy activities, have resulted in the establishment of a network of more than 250 local and regional adult literacy programs and program satellites.

Since the establishment of the Illinois literacy effort and resulting commitment of public funds, more than 20,000 volunteers have been trained and provided nearly one million volunteer hours as tutors or program advocates. More than 20,000 new adult students have come forward to receive basic reading instruction.

All adult literacy programs in Illinois are committed to the concept of mutual cooperation within their delivery areas and receive support through local community coalitions. It is this spirit of cooperation and support which has contributed to the remarkable growth and success to the Illinois literacy effort.

THEORY

The first part of the theory is the definition of the system. The system is defined as a set of components that interact with each other. The components are represented by nodes in a graph, and the interactions are represented by edges. The graph is a directed graph, meaning that the edges have a direction. The nodes are represented by circles, and the edges are represented by arrows. The graph is a directed graph, meaning that the edges have a direction. The nodes are represented by circles, and the edges are represented by arrows.

The second part of the theory is the definition of the system's behavior. The system's behavior is defined as the sequence of states that the system goes through over time. The states are represented by nodes in a state space graph, and the transitions between states are represented by edges. The state space graph is a directed graph, meaning that the edges have a direction. The nodes are represented by circles, and the edges are represented by arrows. The state space graph is a directed graph, meaning that the edges have a direction. The nodes are represented by circles, and the edges are represented by arrows.

The third part of the theory is the definition of the system's properties. The system's properties are defined as the characteristics of the system that are invariant over time. The properties are represented by nodes in a property space graph, and the transitions between properties are represented by edges. The property space graph is a directed graph, meaning that the edges have a direction. The nodes are represented by circles, and the edges are represented by arrows. ## ILLINOIS COMMUNITY COLLEGE BOARD

The Illinois Public Community College Act was passed in 1965 as an outgrowth of the 1964 Master Plan published by the Illinois Board of Higher Education. This legislation, with its subsequent amendments, is the basis for the present system of 50 public community colleges which comprise 39 community college districts.

Of these 39 districts, 37 have locally elected boards of trustees, one (Chicago) has a locally appointed board of trustees, and one (East St. Louis) has a local board of trustees appointed by the Governor. Thirty-six of the districts have a single college, although most have extension centers. Three districts are multi-college, with Chicago having eight colleges, Illinois Eastern having four colleges, and Black Hawk having two colleges. With the exception of State Community College of East St. Louis, each district has tax levy authority to provide local support for district operations. The 39 districts now include 97 percent of the State's population and 92 percent of the territory in the state.

Community colleges provide opportunities not only for the traditional college student but also for the displaced homemaker, the unemployed, the senior citizen, the handicapped, and the welfare recipient. They currently enroll over half of all students attending higher education institutions in Illinois.

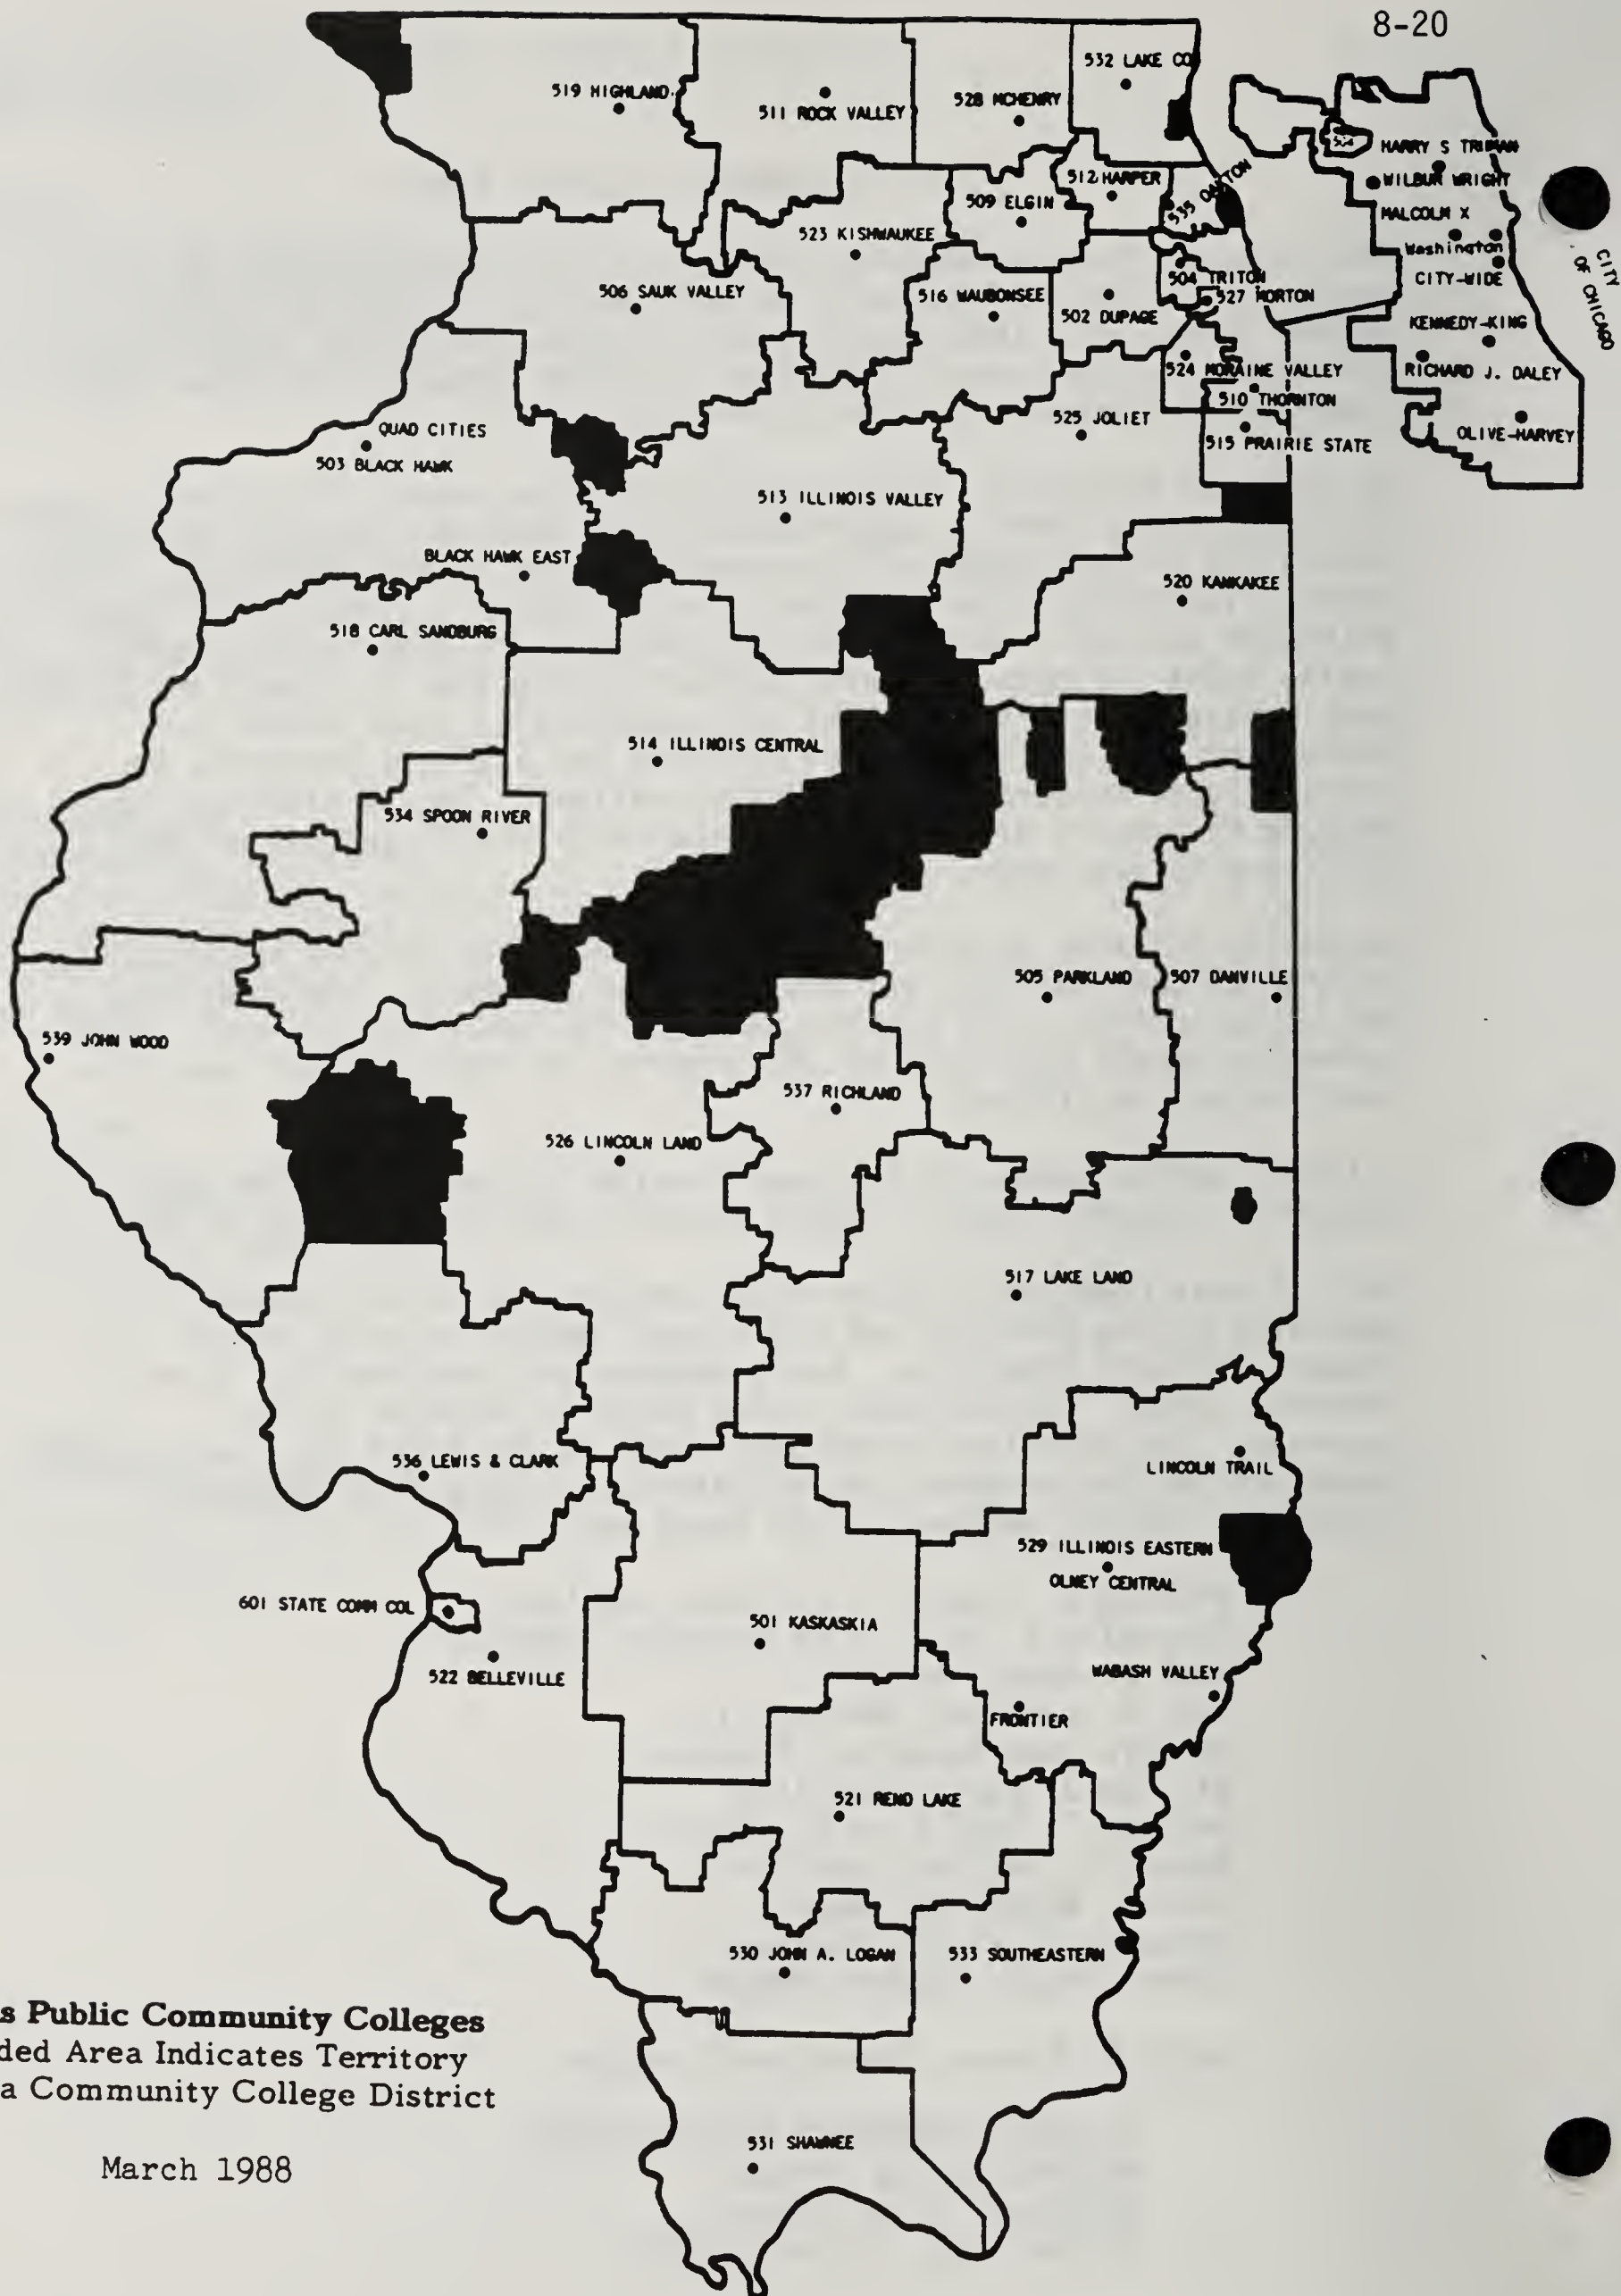

Illinois public community colleges receive funding from three major sources: property taxes, student tuition, and state appropriation.

The Illinois Community College Board consists of eleven members appointed by the Governor and one student member selected by the Student Advisory Committee. Board members are appointed at large for six-year terms. The Chairman of the Board is selected by the Governor. The statutory responsibilities of the Board are planning and coordinating the programs and activities of the public community colleges. Current members of the Board are:

William S. Campbell, Chairman, Ashland
Toussaint L. Hale, Vice Chairman, Chicago
Paul B. Hanks, Hardin
Joel W. Jennings, Metropolis
Manuela Lugo-Gonzalez, Chicago
William J. Payne, Danville
Delores S. Ray, East St. Louis
Robert E. Sechler, Rockford
Jack J. Watts, Robinson
Rosemary S. Ziska, Wheaton
Albert Galus, Student Member

Business and Labor Literacy
Advisory Committee

The Business and Labor Literacy Advisory Committee was established in August 1987 to assist the Illinois Literacy Council in promoting the development of workplace literacy programs and general awareness of the problem of adult literacy among management and labor. Members of the committee are appointed by Secretary of State Jim Edgar.

The committee provided direction in the production of the video "ON THE JOB: Workplace Literacy" and has assisted in its distribution to chambers of commerce, businesses and labor organizations throughout the state.

During 1988, more than 100 businesses in Illinois established onsite or referral basic education programs for employees. Forty (40) onsite programs provide instruction in the workplace. Sixty (60) referral programs provide employee instruction at adult education literacy sites with encouragement and support of employers. In Businesses with union employees, management and union leadership have worked cooperatively to develop these instructional programs.

ILLINOIS LABOR-MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

The relationship between labor and management in Illinois is strong and growing stronger. There is an unprecedented level of cooperation between the work force and the employers in the state. This partnership enables labor and management to jointly address issues of mutual concern, including competitiveness in a global economy, productivity, product quality, new technologies, the current and future skills of the work force, health and safety in the work place, and cost containment, to name a few. Further, this cooperation has enabled many of the state's oldest and largest manufacturing employers who, because of a decline in market share, foreign competition, national trade policies or other reasons, were forced to retrench and confront their problems and have returned as a strong force in the state's economy.

With the establishment of the Illinois Labor-Management Program within the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs in 1985, there has been a surge of new labor-management cooperation efforts, as well as a renewal of long-standing cooperation between labor and management. There is a growing recognition that labor-management cooperation is an economic necessity, particularly in states like Illinois, which have a mature industrial economy. If Illinois companies, communities and the state are to compete in a global economy and be prepared to face increasing foreign competition, new technology and innovation, the partnership and cooperation between labor, management and government must be strengthened.

In March 1986, Governor Thompson appointed 12 members to the Illinois Labor-Management Cooperation Committee, with six members representing executive level management of companies which employ union members and six members representing top union leadership in the state. Among other duties, the committee was charged with improving communications between labor and management on significant economic problems facing the state, encouraging and supporting the development of local labor-management committees at the plant, industry and area levels across the state, assessing the progress of area labor-management committees that have been formed across the state and providing input to the Director of the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs concerning matching grants to area labor-management committees.

In Fiscal Year 1988, labor-management matching grants were awarded to ten labor-management committees; eight grants were awarded to area labor-management committees and two grants were awarded to industry (building and construction trades) labor-management committees. There are currently 18 labor-management committees in Illinois. Most of the area labor-management committees which have been formed in the State of Illinois have been as a result of severe economic conditions or a situation with extremely adversarial labor-management relations. High unemployment and a large number of displaced workers, plant closings, an eroding industrial base and declining union membership have all contributed to the formation of area committees. Although the structure, goals and objectives of the individual committees vary depending on the conditions in their particular area, all provide a forum in which labor and management can increase communication and work for the betterment of the area. ALMC's are an investment in the future of the area and the state and demonstrate the strong commitment to preserving Illinois' greatest asset -- its highly skilled trained work force.
